

ARCHBISHOP ROMERO STUDENTS GO "OUTWARD BOUND"!

For the third year now, Archbishop Romero students braved May's conditions of heat, rain, mosquitoes and black flies and hiked, rock-climbed and did a ropes course for one week in Algonquin Park and Burk's Falls.

Nine students, from three Romero campuses along with staff supervisor Maureen Carolan, learned to rock climb, live and travel in the wilderness, spent time in a powerful reflective solo opportunity, slept in tents, cooked meals over an open fire and practiced minimal impact camping. But the Outward Bound experience was more than just a physical experience. Each participant drew on individual strengths and developed group dynamic skills that made the group expedition a tremendous success.

Jareth Walker, Jermaine Dyer, Kimberley Kelba, Jackie Dawson, Max Tawadros, Jose Vergara, Dario Ianiero, Paul Gerla and Trisha Thomas are to be congratulated for trying new things and demonstrating responsible behaviour and a commitment to achieving a Phys. Ed. Credit. According to Outward Bound instructors Deren Alward and Adina Kaufman, "this was an amazing group of individuals who really came together in one short week where so much was shared from such a supportive team. This was the unbelievable team that hiked 16 kms in 9 hours!"
