

The Anatomy of a Constitution

- political, social, and economic values held by the people

- description of the main government institutions including the responsibilities and the powers associated with each government institution ie. legislative, executive, and judicial branches

- if there is more than one level of government, the division of powers must be clearly set out

- the relationship between the government and the people must be defined, including the rights of the citizens

Amending Formula: for Constitutional Reform